

Rochelle recount ends Judge's ruling on 28 'spoiled' ballots holds key

ROCHELLE—A second count of ballots cast March 16 in a referendum vote has not finally decided the issue, at least until 28 contested "spoiled ballots" are ruled on Wednesday by an Ogle County judge.

The referendum, which involved the construction of a four-lane overpass over the city's busy railroad tracks, was defeated by five votes, with more than 2,700 cast. Because the vote was so close, and a high number of spoiled ballots (58) and several other complaints, a citizens group in favor of the project filed for a recount.

The second counting took place Wednesday at the Rochelle City Hall. Judge F. Lawrence Lenz appointed two Byron women, Dawn M. Hogan and Betty Kobel, to conduct the recount. Their tally was 1,309 for the overpass and 1,314 against it. The net result, five votes shy of approval, was the same as the first count, although they found 104 spoiled ballots, 46 more than before.

Of the spoiled ballots, 28 may be valid if Judge Lenz rules to allow them. He is scheduled to issue a ruling on the votes in question Wednesday at 9 a.m. in Oregon.

Rochelle Mayor Bill Cipolla told reporters, "I am glad it is over with. It brought out minor irregularities in our voting process and was worth the time and effort."

Attorney John Countryman, representing overpass opponents, and Robert Canfield, attorney with project advocates, both commented that they were satisfied with the recount procedure.

The final decision on the issue hinges on Judge Lenz's decision Wednesday on the 28 rejected ballots. Should he accept six more ballots for the proposal than against it, the overpass could become reality.

In the voting, precincts 3 and 7, both primarily southside Rochelle area, went for the overpass along with precincts 5 and 6. Northside precincts 1 and 2 went heavily against the project. Many southside residents feel that the overpass would improve their access to the northside Rochelle Hospital in emergency situations.

A breakdown of the voting by precincts is as follows:

Precinct No.	1	2	3	5	6	7	Total
FOR—
first count	143	147	281	280	306	163	1,320
second count	142	145	276	280	304	162	1,309
AGAINST—
first count	182	236	201	254	302	150	1,325
second count	179	234	200	254	301	146	1,314
SPOILED—
first count	9	6	12	10	12	9	58
second count	13	10	42	10	15	14	104

(Note: In the third precinct, 24 unmarked ballots were found in an envelope during the second count and marked spoiled.)

Lebanon fighting escalates

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Casualties in Lebanon's civil war today climbed toward the level before the cease-fire, with 75 persons reported killed and 120 wounded, as politicians jockeyed for the presidency and debated Syrian military intervention.

Presidential hopeful Raymond Edde claimed that the toll in the year-long war is now 20,000 dead and 60,000 wounded, about 25 per cent more than previous estimates.

The heaviest fighting during the night was in Beirut and the suburban hills where Moslem leftists and right-wing Christian forces continued to battle with mortars and artillery for control of key points. Several large fires were burning in downtown Beirut.

Another fierce battle was reported around Zagharta, hometown of Christian President Sleiman Franjeh. The town is at the northern tip of a Christian enclave of 800 square miles running north along the Mediterranean coast from the Christian half of Beirut.

Today was the day on which other Christian leaders said they expected Franjeh to sign a constitutional amendment adopted by Parliament last week to terminate his term five months early. But there was no indication the president would sign, and the amendment cannot become law for a month without his signature.

Right-wing Christian leaders were meeting at Franjeh's temporary headquarters 12 miles north of Beirut. They were believed trying to agree on a successor who would uphold their conservative views and some of the rights of the Christian minority but would also be acceptable to the Moslem side.

The Lebanese left, a loose grouping of Communists, Socialists and Arab nationalists led by Kamal Jumblatt and backed by left-wing Palestinian guerrillas, continued attacking Syrian military intervention in Lebanon.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger told a Senate subcommittee in Washington that "neither we nor Israel believe that Syrian action in Lebanon is a threat to the security of Israel." But he said Syrian troop movements may be getting "close to the borderline" of Israeli tolerance.

Kissinger said Syria has introduced some military forces into border areas but "has not made a major military movement into Lebanon." He said published reports that there are 13,000 Syrian troops in Lebanon are "grossly exaggerated."

Authoritative sources in Lebanon estimate that Syria has moved at least 15,000 armed men into Lebanon — 6,000 army regulars, most of them in frontier areas controlling the three main highways from Syria into Lebanon; 7,000 Palestinian guerrillas of the Saiga organization which Syria finances and controls, and several thousand Palestinians of the Palestine Liberation Army based in Syria.

Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin said this week that Israeli forces would move into southern Lebanon only if the Syrian troops posed a "direct threat to Israel's security." Israeli analysts interpreted this to mean the Syrians would have to cross the Litani river, a natural boundary about 15 miles north of the Israeli-Lebanese frontier.

Syrian President Hafez Assad is trying to pressure the leftist Moslem Lebanese headed by Kamal Jumblatt into accepting a political agreement that would preserve a sizable role in the government and the economy for the Christian minority who dominated Lebanon until the war. Jumblatt wants majority — meaning Moslem — rule.

Appellate court upholds sentences

The Second District Appellate Court, Elgin, has affirmed the sentencing of two Rockford youths convicted of deviate sexual assault in connection with an attack on a 15-year-old Wisconsin girl.

Billie J. Tate, 20, and Bobby J. Eddington, 21, sought the appeal based on the court's failure to advise them of their rights of parole and by imposing two conviction sentences when the acts charged were in violation of only one criminal statute.

Both were sentenced Dec. 11, 1974, by Chief Circuit Judge James E. Bales, to concurrent penitentiary terms of from 4 to 15 years. Both admitted their guilt in a two-count indictment.

The high court ruled the failure to advise of parole requirements did not violate existing rules. The court did throw out the second count and accompanying sentence. However, the effect of the decision does not change the sentence for the first count.

The two were convicted of picking up the girl in Rockford while she was hitchhiking on her way to Vandalia. The two drove the girl to a side road, near Rochelle, where they turned off U.S. 51 and at gunpoint forced her to commit deviate conduct.

The two were traced by police after they mistakenly placed one of their wallets in the girl's purse after removing valuables.

A robbery charge placed against the pair in connection with taking the contents of the purse, was dismissed as part of the negotiated plea of guilty.

Won't seek indictment of Metcalfe

CHICAGO (AP)—Federal officials recommended today that the Justice Department not seek an indictment against Congressman Ralph H. Metcalfe for alleged tax irregularities.

U.S. Atty. Samuel K. Skinner said it was "one of the hardest decisions I have had to make since I entered office."

Metcalfe, 66, has been a Democratic member of the House of Representatives since 1970.

Skinner said one of the reasons it was a difficult decision is because there was a lot of community interest in the case. Metcalfe recently won re-election in an overwhelming primary victory over a candidate handpicked by Mayor Richard J. Daley.

Five sentenced in tollway robbery

OREGON—Five members of a Chicago family convicted of robbing a couple on the East-West Tollway near Rochelle were sentenced Wednesday by Circuit Judge John Rapp Jr., Mt. Carroll.

Anne Mitchell, 50, was placed on one-year probation while two of her sons, Louie, 21, and Leo Mitchell, 23, were placed on two years probation, the first 30 days to be spent in Ogle County jail. The three were found guilty of robbery.

Two other sons, Steve, 32, and Jimmy Mitchell, 28, convicted of armed robbery, were sentenced to penitentiary terms of four years to four years, six months.

The five were arrested by Ogle County Sheriff's deputies in connection with the robbery of $1,500 in currency and a watch and diamond ring from Lee and Christine Evans, both of Chicago. The couple was stopped in their car by the Mitchells near Rochelle on Jan. 27.

Judge Rapp found the group guilty following a bench trial Jan. 27.

You can get more time to file your taxes

WASHINGTON (AP)—For the millions of Americans who may be sweating to meet tonight's midnight deadline to file their tax returns, the Internal Revenue Service has a gift: more time.

Taxpayers are entitled to an automatic two-month filing extension if they fill out Form 4868 and mail it before midnight with payment in full for the estimated amount of taxes due. The complete paperwork on Form 1040 can wait until June 15.

And if the IRS owes you a refund, you can ignore tonight's deadline altogether. There is no penalty for late filers who do not owe money. The IRS does not even require you to file Form 4868.

But if you make a mistake and end up owing money, the tax collectors add 7 per cent interest to your bill. If you are off by more than 10 per cent, there is also a late-payment penalty of 5 per cent a month.

The IRS said Wednesday returns were running behind last year's rate, when taxpayers had government rebate checks of up to $200 each to look forward to.

Through last Friday, the IRS had received 59.4 million of the 86.4 million returns it expects this year. That means more than 27 million taxpayers, or 31.3 per cent, were going down to the wire. At the same time last year, all but 23.7 per cent of returns had been filed.

The Founding Faith—part 3 Nation based on God-given rights

Editor's Note: This third installment of a five-part Easter series on the Bicentennial theme of "The Founding Faith" deals with the concept justifying independence — the basis of nationhood.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Attachment to God's truth and justice set the taproots of these United States. It generated the ideas, seasoned the deliberations, interwove the speeches, letters, papers. It nurtured the character and spawned the deeds. It inspired that singular, revolutionary manifesto, the Declaration of Independence.

That document spelled out the justification for the nation's birth — that all human beings are "endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights," which can be neither given nor taken away by any other power. They belong inherently to the people, to each of them and the total of them.

These rights derive from the "Laws of Nature and Nature's God," the Declaration maintained, and cannot be usurped by any monarch of government. The divinely given rights are not exclusive possessions of kings, but a gift to all, to every person, to uphold and assert.

On that basis, "appealing to the Supreme Judge of the World for the Rectitude of Our Intentions," the founding fathers declared the 13 British colonies an independent nation. And in doing so, they asserted their "firm Reliance on the Protection of divine Providence."

They grounded their case on God.

The Declaration, in its essential reasoning, was a theological treatise. It challenged the prevailing theory that royalty inherited Lordly rule. Instead, the responsibility was bestowed by the Creator on individual consciences, on the community of them, on the consensus of the people, the Declaration held.

"Its words are more revolutionary than anything written by Robespierre, Marx or Lenin, more explosive than the atom, a continual challenge to ourselves, as well as an inspiration to the oppressed of all the world," says historian Samuel Eliot Morrison.

Four times that short document of July 4, 1776, invoked the divine source of the cause. It was a radical concept, but it was Biblical and it won. Faith laid the foundations.

It did so not only in that initial proclamation, but in the thought, the preparations, attitudes and discussions surrounding it. It "was intended to be an expression of the American mind" of that day, wrote Thomas Jefferson, its main author.

"It ought to be commemorated as the day of deliverance, by solemn acts of devotion to Almighty God," John Adams wrote, adding that it should also be celebrated with parades, games, bells and fireworks "from this time forward, forevermore."

America does just that, at least with the spectacles, every July 4.

But in the beginnings, the devotional aspect provided a regular note, an underlying chord that ran through the decisions and acts of the embryonic nation.

Records of meetings of the Continental Congress are laden with references to God, to "Jesus Christ," to the "Christian Religion," to the "Free Protestant colonies," to public worship, repentance for sins, prayer, morality and thanksgiving.

On the first meeting in September, 1774, in Philadelphia's Carpenter's Hall, the Continental Congress had inaugurated the practice of opening its sessions with prayer. Already, with rumors flying of British military moves, accounts say many talked of "War! War! War!"

Official minutes show that the proposal that an Anglican clergyman, Jacob Duche, lead the Congress in prayers aroused an initial complaint that delegates could "not join in the same act of worship" because of differences of religious affiliation.

But Sam Adams of Massachusetts, master strategist of (See NATION on page 5)

SVC Board ponders Paulsen case Far-reaching effects seen in final decision

By LENNY INGRASSIA

The upcoming decision by members of the Sauk Valley College Board regarding the possible dismissal of Duane Paulsen is bound to have long-reaching effects on the future of the college relating to both administrative and faculty morale.

The decision cannot be an easy one for board members, yet their findings will surely govern future boards of the college relating to dealing with administrators.

The immediate issue pits Dr. George Cole's recommendation to fire the Learning Resource Center director against Paulsen's denial of charges of inadequate performance of duties, continuous neglect of duties and unjustifiable insubordination.

The board is squarely in the middle of this issue — as it should be as an elected body, chosen by the public to serve the public's interests.

The faculty at Sauk stands behind Paulsen, and that fact must be considered in deliberations. Concurrence by the board in Cole's recommendation to fire Paulsen will certainly have its repercussions in the way faculty views administrators and in the way in which they carry out their instructional duties.

Cole's recommendation to dismiss the eight-year veteran must also carry much weight. He is the duly-appointed president and as such is charged with the responsibility of running the institution. In his opinion the firing is essential in carrying out that duty.

The board's willingness to listen to both sides before making a decision is commendable. Every latitude was given the attorneys to present all the available evidence both in the support of charges and in the defense of Paulsen.

Can bankers scuttle reform

By DON OAKLEY

After years of study and reports by two federal commissions and studies by congressional staffs, what has been called the most sweeping reform of the nation's financial system since the Depression years appears headed for a showdown in Congress.

The Financial Institutions Act of 1976 is expected momentarily to be reported out of the House Banking Committee. It goes from there to an uncertain fate in the Rules Committee before going to a vote before the whole House. If passed by the House, it must then be squared with a similar measure passed by the Senate last December.

The legislation actually consists of three separate bills, but the one of greatest interest to the ordinary consumer is one containing provisions that would wipe out many of the distinctions between commercial banks and savings and loans, mutual savings banks and credit unions—the so-called thrift institutions.

Consumers, for example, could open checking accounts at all types of financial institutions instead of just at commercial banks. Payment of interest on checking accounts would also be permitted as of January 1978.

Savings and loans and credit unions would be allowed to make loans for purposes they are now prohibited from making. Savings and loans, now largely limited to the mortgage loan field, could extend a loan to a customer for a new car, for example.

The present 10-year maturity limit on credit union loans, which has effectively kept credit unions out of the mortgage market, would be eliminated. Under the proposed legislation, credit unions could make loans to members for the purchase or construction of a residential dwelling with a maximum maturity of 30 years.

For both commercial banks and the thrifts, present limits on the amount of interest they can pay on savings deposits would be abolished 5½ years after enactment and they could then pay whatever rate they wanted, or the competition dictated.

The reform bill, in short, would make all types of financial institutions more similar to each other and thus increase the competition among them, say its backers. This in turn would bring consumers better and cheaper financial services, more interest on their money and make the housing industry and would-be home buyers less vulnerable to fluctuations in the availability of mortgage funds.

It is precisely this prospect of increased competition, however, as well as closer regulation of banks which is also included in the legislation, that has aroused the opposition of the commercial banking community, as represented by the American Bankers Association (ABA).

The ABA has officially adopted a policy of blanket condemnation of any financial reform legislation in the 94th Congress. In the words of Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., "a phalanx of bankers" descended on Capitol Hill when the committee opened its hearings, seeking to have the legislation pigeonholed for yet further study.

According to columnist Jack Anderson, the ABA's political arm — BANKPAK — has handed out thousands of dollars in campaign contributions to key senators and congressmen, including at least 17 members of the House Banking Committee.

Nevertheless, the banking reform act seems to have not only strong support in Congress but the approval of the Ford administration. The real test, however, will come in the House Rules Committee, which will decide when, if ever, the legislation is offered for deliberation on the House floor.

Voice of the people

A case for foster parents

I am writing about the AP article in your Friday edition. The article seemed to portray the main concern of foster parents to be the amount of money received from the state to care for their foster children. I do not believe this is so.

As a foster parent and having been in close contact with many foster parents in court during the past six years, I believe the main concern of foster parents is a fear that the child will be placed back with its parents. This, to foster parents, is the ultimate nightmare.

There is a common misconception that a foster child is created when some social worker is not satisfied with the child's parents or their ability to raise children. This is not the case.

A child becomes a foster child after the juvenile court has been convinced by evidence presented by the state's attorney, and rebutted by the attorney for the parents, that the child is neglected as a matter of law. In the vast majority of cases I have presented, the children were underfed, sexually abused, beaten, abandoned, or never cared for by their natural parents. Let me give you an example.

In 1972 I accompanied a police officer into an apartment that was a filthy mess. We found there a boy about 16 months old. The boy was wearing a diaper that hadn't been changed for two days; his body was riddled by about 200 needle holes where his mother, under the influence of heroin, had jabbed him with the same needle she had used.

On the bottom of his left foot was an open sore caused, we believe, by his alcoholic grandfather putting out his cigar. The baby's bottom was scalded by someone placing it under the hot water faucet to clean up some prior mess. We rushed the child to a hospital and learned that his distended stomach was caused by not being fed for two days. The child needed to be hospitalized for five days. His father was in the penitentiary at the time.

Not all cases are this extreme, but it is not uncommon to find welts, malnutrition, or several weeks' layers of accumulated dirt in children. Often after these children are placed with foster parents for three to six months they are returned by the court to their natural parents. Do not blame the courts for this. The announced policy in this state says that children should eventually be with their natural parents or they should be placed for adoption. This all or nothing social theory forces children who are just beginning to know warmth, love, caring and normal life to be snatched from their foster parents' arms to be relocated with their natural parents on an experimental basis. Six months later the natural parents have failed again and, if discovered, the children are placed in another foster home for a short while until the next experiment begins.

I have come within a hair of being held in contempt of court twice in my life. Both times were in juvenile court. And neither time was the judge the reason. The real problem lies in the philosophy and operation of our State's Department of Children and Family Services.

Answer in winds

The government is going to spend $147,800 to find out if people would mind having windmills as neighbors.

That's the amount of a grant which the National Science Foundation and the Energy Research and Development Administration have made to the University of Illinois' Survey Research Laboratory for a year-long study of public reactions to windmills in five areas across the country, ranging from the heavily settled East Coast to the plains of Kansas to the Pacific Northwest.

For a lot less than $147,800, we can tell the researchers the answer already: If people get hungry enough for energy, they'll like windmills.

Someone down in Springfield with power over this department has decided that children's rights are not half as important as those of their natural parents. This philosophy has caused caseworkers for the department to deliberately understate the conditions in the natural parent's home and to recommend that the child be placed back in homes that would make any normal person vomit. Think what this makes the foster parents feel like.

The other problem is that the department runs the sloppiest agency in existence. Here are just a few examples. The turnover rate of caseworkers is phenomenal. The good social workers I have met have been forced to resign because they couldn't put up with the ridiculous philosophy and red tape involved. The department further refuses to recognize that, in court, you cannot use hearsay evidence. Thus, many cases which should be won are blown apart because the department sends someone to court who has no firsthand knowledge of the facts. They come in with a load of reports from other workers, who should be there, and these reports can't be used. If we are lucky enough to get a caseworker who knows the facts, she is usually so wrapped up with phrases like "peer group" or "social milieu" or such meaningless nonsense that she is unable to say "I saw day-old food on the table with the cockroaches."

Lest you think this is only my opinion, let me assure you that I have talked to nearly every state's attorney in Illinois and they all feel the same way.

In the same article Mrs. Leahy, director of the Department of Children and Family Services, says we should be strengthening the family, not removing children. This is the kind of bureaucratic crap we are fighting all the time.

If this letter sounds angry, it should. We, the people of this state, should take steps to insure that someone somewhere will consider the children. Foster parents do this but are not allowed any effective voice in court.

Perhaps, foster parents and neglected children are the real persons who are forgotten in this insane setup. The law shouts that the Department of Children and Family Services act "in the best interest of the minor." No one there seems to listen.

And that, not money, is our complaint.

Lady upset over sky ad

Dear Ann Landers: Yesterday, as my mother and I walked down the street (we live in Hollywood, Fla.), we encountered several people looking skyward and grinning. We glanced up and saw a plane carrying a huge banner tail that read, "I love you, Jim. Get a divorce."

My mother laughed and said, "Isn't it crazy what some people will do to attract attention! It's probably an advertisement." I managed a weak chuckle, but didn't think it was very funny.

My husband's name is Jim and he has been awfully cool these last few months. That was no ad, Ann. Someone was trying to tell somebody something.

I finally tracked down the name of the company that owns the plane. It is enclosed. Will you please find out who paid for that message? I can't risk going to them directly, and I am — Worried Stiff.

Dear W.S.: Sorry, dear, I don't do spy work. Keep your eyes peeled for evidence on the home front and take it from there.

Dear Ann Landers: I have started to write to you many times but somehow my letters never reached the mailbox. When I read the one from the girl who was madly in love at 14, I knew I had to mail this one. I, too, was in love at 14. From the eighth grade through the twelfth, I was just plain ape over the guy. I dated a few others but never gave myself a chance to like any of them. I wouldn't listen when friends told me I was being used.

I figured Mr. Dreamboat loved me best because every time he'd have a fight with his latest heart-throb he'd come back to me and we'd pick up where we left off. Now I realize I was a donkey and he was a heel.

At 18, I "woke up and smelled the coffee," as you say. I met a great guy who had everything Mr. Dreamboat had — plus integrity and character. Twice last month I ran into Mr. D. B. and it was like I'd never known him. So please, Ann, tell the 14-year-old that if she's smart she'll hang loose and get the crazy idea out of her head that there's only one guy in the world for her. — Ask me, I Know

Dear You: Well said. But no one listens until she's ready.

Dear Ann Landers: The nerve of that woman attacking you because you said "DO" the dishes. Then she went on to make fun of you because you came from Iowa!

Tell the loudmouth that the whole bit started the day the bride said "I do." From that moment forward, she agreed to DO the dishes, DO the laundry, DO the diapers, and do just about every other damned thing that needed doing — including being nice to his mother and the rest of his stuck-up relatives. — For You All The Way

Dear For Me: Thanks for the lift. I needed that.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband passed away in 1972. A very fine man who lost his wife two years ago has been quite attentive. I never thought I'd care to marry again, but he's giving me second thoughts.

Mr. X is self-employed (doesn't need my money), nice looking, and my married children think he's wonderful. The only problem: he is ridiculously superstitious. Does this mean he's a little wacky, or slightly ignorant? — No Offense Meant

Dear N.O.M.: Many bright (And stable) people are superstitious. The gentleman sounds like a promising "prospect." Knock on wood, honey.

Cucumber canapes

4 ounces grated (medium-fine) cheddar cheese
2 tablespoons mayonnaise
8 small pimiento-stuffed green olives, minced
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1½ teaspoon bottled white horseradish
1 cucumber, 7 inches long.
Large pieces of toasted walnuts
Mix together the cheese, mayonnaise, olives, mustard and horseradish; chill to have firm. (Makes a generous ½ cup.) At serving time, cut off cucumber ends and discard. If waxed, pare; if not waxed, wash and dry and leave unwaxed. Slice into ¼-inch rounds for easy pickup — there should be 24. Dry cucumber slices on toweling so cheese topping all adhere. Turn a level teaspoon of the cheese mixture onto each cucumber round; press down firmly. Press a walnut piece over center of each round. Makes 24.

Nutbread sandwiches

Two 3-ounce packages cream cheese
2 tablespoons light cream or milk
1-3rd cup golden or dark raisins, chopped
Thinly sliced nutbread
Beat together the cream cheese, light cream and raisins. Makes about ¾ cup. Use as a spread for sandwiches made from the nutbread.

THICK 'N' THIN

Suit for spring and summer

By JUDY LOVE

Spring is the season to suit yourself.

My first choice for crocheters is a suit that will span two seasons. It'll keep you fashion-right from the first day of spring through the last day of summer.

The skirt has a soft A-shape and a waist that's elasticized for easy slip-on comfort. The jacket fits just as easily and lightly. It's a wrap-around style that forms the neckline into a sharp V and ties with a self-belt at the waistline.

As great looking as they are together you can separate these two easy pieces to give your wardrobe greater versatility.

Picture yourself in the skirt topped by a silky bow-tied and belted over-blower. Just as easily, imagine the short-sleeved top over a soft long or daytime skirt in a solid color.

For the added attraction of a delicate color mixture and crisp texture, crochet the suit in a yarn like Reynolds Rosalie and trim the jacket in Reynolds Parfait.

Instructions for making the suit are available for sizes 10 through 16. For your copy of easy to follow instructions, send 50 cents to Stitchin' Time, care of Dixon Evening Telegraph, Radio City Station, Box 503, New York, N.Y. 10019. Ask for leaflet No. 444 and be sure to enclose your name, address and zip code.

KNIT-KNACKS

Dear Judy Love: The instructions I'm using to make an afghan requires decreasing by crocheting two double crochets together. How is this done? — H. M., Stockton, Utah.

Dear H.M.: As you know, decreasing is working off 2 stitches as 1, thus losing one stitch whenever this is done. For a double crochet you will work your first double crochet to the point where 2 loops remain on the hook, then yarn over the insert hook in next stitch, yarn over and draw through 2 loops, yarn over and draw through remaining 3 loops. To decrease when doing single crochet you will draw up a loop in the next single crochet, draw up a loop in the following single crochet, then wrap yarn over hook and draw through all 3 loops at once. In either case, decreasing can be done any place along the row, unless your instructions are specific. Best, Judy Love.

HAIRCUT

Be safe and don't arrange for a haircut immediately before a big event. Allow enough time for your hair to grow back somewhat, if your hairdresser is the overzealous type, or if you're trying someone new for a haircut.

Attention! Prospective brides

Because of misunderstanding on wedding pictures. The Telegraph is asking prospective brides to arrange for good black-and-white wedding pictures for use with wedding stories.

Color photographs and black-and-white prints off a color negative are unsatisfactory for good newspaper reproduction.

Rather than be disappointed by having a picture rejected by the newspaper, we are advising brides to insist on a black-and-white picture shot with black-and-white film.

Double sluff aids ruff one

By Oswald and James Jacoby
Old man Z who used to appear in the auction bridge columns played dummy's king of hearts. East discarded to 10 of clubs and Z remarked, "I believe R. F. Foster thought of this hand back around 1922. It is a ruff and discard hand to end all such."

Then Z overtook dummy's king of hearts with his ace, cashed two trumps and both minor suit aces. His next play was a low heart. West had to win the trick and play another heart.

Z discarded a club from his hand and a diamond from dummy. West had to lead another heart. Z chucked dummy's last low diamond, ruffed in his own hand and claimed the balance of the tricks and his contract. West had been forced to give Z a double discard first and a ruff and a discard next.

Pickled carrots

6 medium carrots, each about 6 inches long
1½ cups sugar
2 cups cider vinegar
1 tablespoon homemade or commercial mixed pickling spice
½ teaspoon salt

Pare carrots; cut in half crosswise and lengthwise. In a medium saucepan bring sugar, vinegar, mixed pickling spice and salt to the boiling point; simmer, uncovered, for 5 minutes. Strain and return to saucepan. Add carrots; bring liquid to boiling point; simmer, covered, until tender-crisp — about 5 minutes. Chill several days before using. Makes 2 pints. Recipe may be doubled.

Note: To "put up" in jars, simmer carrots only 3 minutes. Pack carrots into hot, sterilized preserving jars leaving ½-inch head space. Pour boiling-hot liquid over carrots, leaving ½-inch head space. Add lids and screw bands. Stand jars on a rack in a large kettle with enough boiling water to come 1-inch above jars. Return water to boiling point; simmer, covered, for 30 minutes. Remove jars from kettle and cool. Ad-just bands if necessary.

Nation based on God-given rights

(Continued from page 1) the Revolution, organizer of the "Sons of Liberty," leader of the Boston Tea Party of 1773 and a dedicated Congregationalist, deplored denominational bigotry and dispelled the opposition to shared devotions. "Plead Thou my cause, O Lord, with them that strive with me; fight against them that fight against me . . . For they speak not peace: but they devise deceitful matters against them that are quiet in the land," Duche read from the 35th Psalms, beginning the service of extemporaneous prayers for the country's future.

John Adams, a Massachusetts Congregationalist who became the country's second president and who originally planned to become a minister before turning to the law, said the service left delegates in tears, exalted by its fervor, earnestness and pathos, "so elegant and sublime."

The daily practice, continued at the Second Continental Congress of 1775, which would go on almost steadily for the next 14 years as a nation was wrought, became a standing rule. Prayer still opens each day's business of Congress.

Four times, the Continental Congress set days for public prayers, fasting and repentance for sins—a summons of contrition always present, but implying not a failure of nerve but a vigorous response to God. In the religious emphasis of that time, the abrogation of human rights represented punishment for sin, and defending those rights demanded Christian reform and obedience.

In July 1775, in the wake of battles of Lexington and Bunker Hill, came the call to fast and prayer to the "Great Governor of the World."

That same week, the Continental Congress ordered the raising of 10 companies of expert riflemen in Pennsylvania, Maryland and Virginia to join the army in Boston. On the morning of the fast, delegates walked in a body from Independence Hall to Christ Church as bells tolled through the city.

George Washington, made commander-in-chief of the Continental forces, already had gone to Cambridge to take charge of the army there. He issued an order that "it is strictly enjoined on all Officers and Soldiers" to take part in the fast and attend divine worship, but to "take their Arms, Ammunitions and Accoutrements" in case of need for immediate action.

With flames of conflict already leaping in Massachusetts, the Continental Congress on July 2, 1776, had asserted American independence, declaring the colonies "are, and of right ought to be free." This was two days before the reasoning was set forth in the July 4 Declaration.

It was signed by 56 men, led by Massachusetts Congregationalists John Hancock and Sam Adams. Most of the signers were Anglicans and Congregationalists, several Presbyterians, including clergyman John Witherspoon, a Baptist, and a Roman Catholic, Charles Carroll. Most were committed churchmen; all had a firm, thoughtful belief in God.

A few have been classified as "Deists," including notable leaders such as Benjamin Franklin and Thomas Jefferson. They deplored interchurch rivalry, considered their faith a "reasonable Christianity" and showed little interest in the miraculous.

Basically, "Deism" consisted of a five-fold affirmation of belief that God exists as creator and sustainer of the natural world, that he is to be worshipped, that worship demands virtue, that wrongdoing must be repented, and that there is an afterlife of rewards and punishment.

Jefferson, something of a Biblical scholar, spent his evenings while president arranging the four gospels in sequential order and eliminating repetition, a work now known as "The Jefferson Bible."

"It is a document in proof that I am a real Christian, that is to say, a disciple of the doctrines of Jesus," Jefferson wrote later. He said his beliefs were those of Jesus, namely, "that there is one perfect God, that there is a 'future state of rewards and punishments,'" and "to love God will all thy heart and thy neighbor as thyself, is the sum of religion."

Among some intellectuals, "Deism" had arisen as part of a rationalizing tendency, an age called the "Enlightenment," stimulated by Isaac Newton's synthesis of physics, which held that sufficient inquiry into natural phenomena could explain the workings of the universe and confirm the reasonableness of religious faith.

Among the notable founders, John Adams showed constant religious concern in letters to his wife, Abigail. He had a consuming interest in reading theology and saw the Sermon on the Mount as the perfect code for humanity.

Jefferson, in an exchange of letters with Adams in their old age, foresaw death as "meeting with friends we have loved and lost, and whom we shall still love and never lose again." Replied Adams: "If I did not believe in a future state, I should not believe in God."

Both died on July 4, 1826, exactly 50 years after signing the Declaration of Independence.

But in the interim, after independence was achieved, they and other founders had gone on to forge another time-honored document, the U.S. Constitution of 1787. In the midsummer efforts to draft it, the Constitutional Convention had virtually ground to a standstill, bogged down in wrangling and conflict.

It was an "awful and critical moment," wrote William Few, a Georgia delegate, of that morning of June 28. If the impasse was not resolved, he said, "dissolution of the union of states seemed inevitable."

In that crisis, the voice of Benjamin Franklin of Pennsylvania, who at 81 was the oldest delegate present, broke the silence. "In this situation . . . how has it happened, sir, that we have not hitherto once thought of humbly applying to the Father of lights to illuminate our understanding?"

"We have been assured, sir, in the sacred Writings, that 'except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it' . . . And if a sparrow cannot fall to the ground without his notice, is it possible that an empire can rise without his aid?"

"I have lived a long time, sir, and the longer I live, the more convincing proofs I see of this truth—that God governs in the affairs of men. I firmly believe that, and I also believe that without his concurring aid we shall succeed in this political building not better than the builders of Babel."

In the ensuing discussion, Edmund Randolph of Virginia proposed that a special sermon be preached on July 4, and that from then on, there be daily intercessory prayers. It was done, and on Sept. 17, 1787, the Constitution was signed, its ratification completed by states the next year.

George Washington, sworn into office as president on April 30, 1789, held his right hand on the Bible as he repeated the oath of office prescribed by the Constitution, and then added his own words, customary in oaths ever since, "So help me God."

He bent down and kissed the book held by Samuel Otis, secretary of the Senate.

At the direction of Congress, he set the first national Thanksgiving day on Nov. 26, 1789, declaring: "It is the duty of all nations to acknowledge the providence of Almighty God, to obey his will, to be grateful for his benefits, and humbly to implore his protection and favor."

Washington, who had served as an Anglican (Episcopal) vestryman in his home parish in Virginia, said in his farewell address to Congress after serving two terms as the nation's first president:

"Of all the dispositions and habits which lead to political prosperity, religion and morality are indispensable supports . . . let us with caution indulge the supposition that morality can be maintained without religion."

The Doctor Says

Explanation of surgery for cancer treatment

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB—I lost a daughter at age 54 years. It was 10 years ago when she died. She had cancer and the doctors she had surely put her through their butcher shop. First they took off one breast, then the other breast, still later they took out her female organs and finally they went in through her back and made a diagonal incision on each side of the spine and took out a piece of the rib to get inside and remove the glands over the kidney.

Why did they take these glands out unless they knew they were affected with cancer? A nurse told me later that they did not take all of those glands out or she would not have lived. This last operation on her back was done in September and she lived till a year after in November.

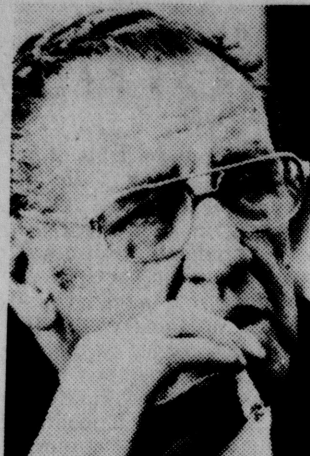

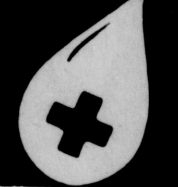

I have read in a magazine that there is a remedy under lock and key in Washington for cancer. If the AMA would let it out they could cure cancer, but they are making so much money that they wouldn't let it out. Thank you for any information you can give me on this subject.

DEAR READER—First things first. When a woman has a spread of cancer cells from the breast to other areas in the body, one of the accepted forms of treatment is to reduce the hormone supply which helps to support the growth of the cancer. This is why the female organs were removed. Some patients with incurable breast cancer that has already spread can be controlled for some length of time by removal of the female organs.

The same thing can be said about the removal of the glands over the top of the kidney. These glands also produce female hormones after the ovaries have been removed. If they were totally removed the doctors probably gave her a replacement of the other hormones that she needed that are formed by the adrenal cortex. The whole idea was to decrease the body's formation of female hormones by these glands and the ovaries so that the cancer cells spread throughout the body would not continue to grow. These glands were not removed because they were thought to have cancer but rather because of the influence of female hormones on the spread of cancer.

You have certainly been reading a lot of hogwash judging from the rest of your letter. There is no known cure for cancer under lock and key in Washington or anywhere else for that matter. The surest way the doctors would have of making money from cancer patients would be to have a good cure for it. Such published garbage is just exemplification of the widespread paranoia that exists in certain segments of our society.

Is sex-pot study dead?

CARBONDALE, Ill. (AP) — A congressional maneuver may have doused a Southern Illinois University sex and marijuana experiment.

The House passed Tuesday a grab bag bill of supplemental appropriations bearing a provision that no more federal funds were to be spent on the controversial project.

Sponsored by Rep. Robert Michel, R-Ill., the measure now goes to the Senate Appropriations Committee, a panel which has two senators among its members strongly opposed to the experiment.

Dr. Harris Rubin, the SIU psychologist in charge of the study, said today the action is "a threat to science in the country."

"The implications are huge," he said. "It takes the evaluation of research projects out of the hands of experts and puts it into the hands of politicians. They haven't the time or the expertise to determine what research should be done."

Rubin's research, which had been granted $121,000 by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, had attracted vehement opposition in Congress and among some citizens.

He proposed to administer marijuana to paid, male volunteers and show them erotic films while a machine measured their sexual arousal.

Sex hormone levels were to be monitored in another phase of the project.

Rubin said he had not been warned of the Michel's measure and accused the representative of sneaking it through the House. A spokesman for Michel said today, "He didn't sneak it in. It was put in the committee and was debated at that time."

"The point is that the money Dr. Rubin was going to spend is the people's money. Members of Congress may not be scientists but they represent the people," the spokesman said.

Add this handy accessory to your sewing machine for just a few cents a day.

I love to sew. Sometimes I'm in here half the day. What a bother it was to drop everything and run for the telephone.

No more. I just got an extension phone. Believe me, it's just as useful in my sewing room as my sewing machine. And the phone's really a bargain. It costs just pennies a day.

Wherever you spend a lot of your time, you need an extension phone. Call your Centel business office to order the phones you need. Why run all over the house?

Artukovic finds no peace in his retirement days

By HOLGER JENSEN
Associated Press Writer
SURFSIDE, Calif. (AP) — His neighbors call him a "friendly old man." His enemies call him the Butcher of the Balkans, personally responsible for the deaths of 800,000 Serbs and Jews in wartime Yugoslavia.

Andrija Artukovic has not found peace in retirement at this small beach community in Southern California. Hounded by U.S. congressmen, federal agents, Jewish militants and Communist extradition attempts, he can only hope for biological amnesty: death.

Now, 77, the former interior minister of Nazi-controlled "Independent Croatia" is under siege again from a host government embarrassed by his illegal alien status and unsure of his World War II activities.

Artukovic is number one on the hit list of the Jewish Defense League and a champion to the Catholic Church. Wanted as a war criminal by Tito's Communist regime, he is revered as a nationalist hero by Croatian emigres and endorsed by right-wing American interests.

To friend and foe alike, Artukovic passes the same message: "I just want to be left alone. My declining years are my own."

He refuses all interviews, has no family spokesman and communicates with the outside world through a few close friends affiliated with the Croatian Information Service, an emigre newsletter printed in Arcadia, Calif.

They steadfastly maintain his innocence, charging that the allegations of mass murder are a Yugoslavian Communist plot to "liquidate" Artukovic because he symbolizes Croatian independence.

"He is a fine man, deeply religious, very well educated," says Peter Radelovic, president of the CIS who has almost daily contact with Artukovic. "All these stories about him are cheap junk."

A neighbor woman who sees him infrequently on his solitary walks says it is "terrible that he should be persecuted this way. He's just a nice old man who loves kids. He always has something cheerful to say."

But the JDL considers him one of the Eichmanns of World War II, and the Yugoslavian government has accused him of exterminating children in wartime concentration camps by ordering caustic soda to be added to their food.

The object of all this hatred and adulation is a recluse, rarely venturing beyond the wall of B-62 Surfside Colony except for his walks and occasional visits to nearby Huntington Beach to play cards with friends.

They say Artukovic is still in good health.

Artukovic lives with his wife. Their four children have long ago married and moved out. He spends much of his day reading and playing the piano.

The couple has no visible means of support, giving rise to Yugoslavian government charges that Artukovic is living off plundered jewelry and gold dentures from his concentration camp victims. A likelier explanation is his millionaire brother, John, a building contractor in Sherman Oaks.

Death threats, JDL pickets and a firebomb attack on his brother's parked car once forced Artukovic to hire bodyguards from a private security service. Now he relies on the Seal Beach Police Department, which has established a special "Artukovic Liaison" detail.

Most of his neighbors are protective of Artukovic's privacy, hostile to newsmen and other "snoopers" and indignant about allegations of wartime atrocities.

"He was cleared by our American courts and that's good enough for me," says one Surfside resident who asked to remain anonymous for fear of JDL retribution.

But those who want to reopen the Artukovic file say he has only thwarted extradition and deportation because of a lack of evidence acceptable to American courts.

It is difficult to separate fact from fiction in a 30-year-old case colored by Communist propaganda, Jewish emotion, U.S. bureaucracy and Croatian nationalism. Some of the highlights:

Artukovic was interior minister of Croatia, a breakaway state of Yugoslavia, at a time when the notorious Ustashi secret police were killing many Serbs, Jews and Gypsies.

The number of their alleged victims has been inflated over the years. At war's end, the Yugoslavian government published an estimate of 51,534. It now alleges 750,000 Serbs, 60,000 Jews and 26,000 Gypsies died in camps "administered by Artukovic."

Artukovic is an illegal immigrant. After escaping his homeland to Switzerland, he entered the United States in 1948 on an Irish certificate of identity bearing the name Alois Anich.

The Immigration and Naturalization Service ordered him deported in 1952, but the U.S. State Department stayed the order and granted him temporary visitor status, contending that he would be persecuted for his political beliefs if he were sent back to Yugoslavia.

In 1951, the Yugoslavian Consul-General requested the extradition of Artukovic on a warrant charging 1,293 documented counts of "murder and participation in murder." Among other things it named Artukovic as the founder of an elite Ustashi "Cut Throat Group."

Eight years of legal maneuvering ensued in U.S. District Court. Yugoslavia failed to produce witnesses backing up its indictment, while the defense paraded a host of Croatian emigres who testified that Artukovic had no power over the secret police and was personally anguished by the bloodshed of civil war.

In 1959, U.S. Immigration Commissioner Theodore Hocke rejected the extradition request, ruling that Yugoslavia's charges were "political in nature."

Accused in stunt gun attack

CHICAGO (AP) — A Skokie youth has been charged with armed robbery and aggravated battery in connection with an attack on a Miami, Fla., woman in the elevator of a suburban hotel.

Officials said Marc Hadesman, 19, surrendered Wednesday after he was identified by the victim from police photographs. Hadesman has a previous arrest record but no convictions, police said.

Hadesman was accused of attacking Edna Blum, 50, in an elevator of the hotel where she was attending a square dance callers' convention with her husband. The attacker allegedly used a gun that shoots darts.

She told police that her attacker fired at her several times with a gun which implants electrode darts that can paralyze a victim. She said she fled the elevator and her attacker followed her, hitting her on the head with the gun and threatening to kill her.

The attacker grabbed her purse and fled with about $60, a set of pearls and Mrs. Blum's airline tickets, police said.

Rigney co-sponsors bill on compensation for farm workers

SPRINGFIELD—State Representatives George Ryan (R-Kankakee) and Harlan Rigney (R-Freepoint) have filed legislation in the Illinois General Assembly which they say will clarify farmers' responsibility and obligation to employees in regard to workmen's compensation, and generally improve the lot of Illinois' small farmer.

The Rigney-Ryan bill increases the maximum number of man days of labor necessary before a farmer must contribute to the workmen's compensation program, and exempts farm labor from possibly being classified as "extra-hazardous" labor for which workmen's compensation benefits must be provided.

In a joint statement the downstate legislators commented:

"At present an Illinois farmer must participate in the workmen's compensation program if he hires more than 245 man days of labor per year.

"Many smaller farmers, therefore, who may hire just one farm hand during a portion of the year are forced to provide workmen's compensation benefits. Under our bill, the minimum man days of labor would be raised to 1,000 hours and an unfair and unreasonable economic burden would be taken from Illinois farmers.

"Similarly, the 'extra-hazardous' labor provisions of the present law are so vague that farm labor might be unfairly construed as 'extra-hazardous' and once again, the small farmer would have to bear an unfair economic burden.

"Our bill is designed to deal more realistically with Illinois farmers who have smaller agriculture operations and actually hire minimum labor during only part of the year.

"The family farm in Illinois is rapidly fading from history because of unreasonable labor laws, inheritance taxes and other complexities of modern times. We have reached the point where someone has to speak up for farmers' rights and prerogatives.

"We believe this bill accomplishes that in a fair and reasonable manner."

Rigney is a farmer and spokesman on the House Agriculture Committee, and Ryan is GOP spokesman on the powerful House Appropriation Committee.

Ogilvie challenges demand for return of $188.4 million

CHICAGO (AP) — Former Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie has challenged the federal government's demand that $188.4 million in mental health funds be returned by the State of Illinois.

Ogilvie Wednesday accused the Department of Health, Education and Welfare of going on false assumptions in its claim that the state violated federal guidelines in spending the money. Ogilvie said that, during the final months of his administration, there really were no firm guidelines to follow.

Richard Friedman, regional director of HEW replied, though, that there "were some very general guidelines and parameters in 1972 (and they were) clarified and made more specific in early 1973."

Friedman's department has asked Illinois to return the money spent over a two-year period under the Republican Ogilvie and his Democratic successor, Gov. Daniel Walker.

Illinois public aid Director

James Trainor said Wednesday the state is in full compliance under old agreements with HEW and he indicated that Friedman is unfairly applying new standards retroactively.

Ogilvie agreed, saying HEW, "isn't on very sound ground trying to collect for a violation of regulations formulated after the money was given to the state."

The return of the money, if appealed by the state, could take up to two years, but already legislators are worried about a possible psychological impact on this year's efforts to get more money for schools and public aid programs.

In a study published last summer, the Brookings Institute said it appeared the Ogilvie administration covered its budget deficit in its final year by using the federal funds. However, the bulk of the disputed funds, $155 million, was spent by the Walker administration.

Probation, fine after admitting burglaries

Carl R. Maves Jr., 17, Rt. 3, was placed on two years' probation and fined $200 Wednesday, after he admitted his part in three burglaries. Maves appeared in Lee County Circuit Court.

He was arrested in connection with two break-ins at the Darrel Brenner residence, where a revolver and shells were taken. In a third break-in, at the Courtney Shaeffer residence, Rt. 3, an estimated $80 in currency was taken.

Lloyd D. Schultheis, 22, Rt. 1, Amboy, was fined $25 on a conviction for battery, a charge placed against him by sheriff's deputies Feb. 23, following a fight at the Skyline Lounge involving Donald Masters.

Willie C. Victim, 1317 W. Seventh St., was sentenced to three days imprisonment on a conviction for disorderly conduct. Victim was arrested by Dixon Police following a disturbance at the Joann Kolb residence March 19.

Dwain Hereford, 37, 1317 W. Ninth St., was found not guilty of a charge of battery during a bench trial. Hereford was charged with the offense by Dixon Police March 1.

A special meeting of the board was set for 7:30 p.m., May 3, at the Central Office in Lee Center for the purpose of hiring non-certified personnel for next year, establishment of the 1976-77 teacher salary schedule and to consider recommendations relative to proposed cuts for next year.

District Superintendent Gilbert Moulton announced a reorganization meeting for board members to be held at Shabbona High School at 8 p.m., on April 21.

The next regular meeting of the board will be held at Lee Center on May 17 at 7:30 p.m.

Three Polo school resignations okayed

POLO—The Polo School Board approved three faculty resignations at the board meeting Monday night.

Resignations accepted were from Frank Sump as assistant basketball wrestling coach, Bill Jenkins as head basketball coach, and Mrs. JoEllyn Bernardin as Junior High home economics teacher.

The board also approved a request from Bill Jenkins to conduct a basketball clinic June 7 through 18 at Polo High School for Polo students in grades 5 through 8.

Also approved was a request from the Village of Progress to lease a school bus to haul Polo area students to a summer program. The Village of Progress will pay the driver and will be charged mileage for the use of the vehicle.

The board also granted the Head Start program use of building facilities.

The following announcements were given: The estimated cost to repair a plate glass window at the high school damaged by vandals is $50; the brick wall on the front of the high school will have to be sandblasted to remove paint sprayed on by vandals; Ogle County has been assigned a .9071 multiplier, so the school taxes for the 1976-77 school year will be reduced by approximately $79,000; state aid for the current school year has been reduced an additional $37,000 since Jan. 1; since tax bills will be two to three months late, the school will have to borrow additional funds until taxes are available; and Washington National Insurance Co. has notified the school that group insurance premiums will increase 71 per cent beginning May 1.

The board then went into closed session to discuss the salary proposal for the 1976-77 school year.

O'Brien re-elected to head Ohio High Board

OHIO—William O'Brien was re-elected president of the Ohio High School board of education at its reorganization meeting Monday. Winifred Lovgren was re-elected secretary and Ann Albrecht was seated as a new member.

The board approved the payment of bills from the various funds in the total amount of $15,474.27.

Darlene Yucus, chairman of the board salary committee, reported a joint meeting will be held with the grade school committee and recommendations will be presented to both boards for their consideration at the May meetings.

Principal Warren Brown reported on pre-registration and enrollment for the coming school year. As a result of this report, the board approved the cancellation of Spanish II in 1976-77. The board also instructed the administration to prepare alternatives for Ag II and Journalism, both of which have insufficient enrollment to justify inclusion in next year's schedule.

Average daily attendance for the month of March was 96.51 per cent, slightly under the year-long average of 96.93 per cent.

Instructional materials for the coming school year were approved for purchase. The total cost of art materials will be $865.75, library books $301.45, and Industrial Arts supplies $988.75. Materials approved for purchase were requested by the teaching staff.

Superintendent John Henrikson reported on the financial situation of the district. He informed the board they are fortunate to have enough money to pay their bills without resorting to borrowing even if the tax distributions are delayed, as has been predicted.

The board commended retiring member Art Gugerty for his many years of service. Gugerty has been replaced by Mrs. Ann Albrecht, who began her term at this meeting.

In other business, the board approved:

—The purchase of a new typewriter for the superintendent's office;

—The filing of the claim for reimbursement from the Division of Vocational and Technical Education;

—A resolution encouraging the federal government to maintain and continue the revenue sharing program;

—An "open" dance to be sponsored by the sophomore class on April 30.

Batch plans two instant lottery games in 1977

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Illinois Lottery Supt. Ralph Batch says the instant lottery game is a big money-maker and he hopes to conduct two of them in fiscal 1977.

The game has been criticized by some legislators and psychologists who say it encourages the compulsive gambler to buy more tickets than he should.

In the instant game, a buyer can determine immediately whether he has won. In the other lottery games, the buyer has to wait for a weekly drawing to see if he has won.

The state's first instant lottery game produced $56 million in revenues, Batch told an Illinois House appropriations committee Wednesday.

The committee was considering the state Department of Revenue's $320 million budget request, which includes money to operate the lottery.

Several House and Senate committee hearings had been scheduled for Wednesday, but most were cancelled as lawmakers enjoyed the first day of a 12-day recess for Easter and Passover.

The lottery is expected to generate some $165 million this year, Batch said, with 45 per cent awarded in prizes and 45 per cent returned to the state treasury.

The remaining 10 per cent goes to ticket sellers, banks which collect receipts and for supplies and employees needed to operate the system.

Rep. Dwight Friedrich, R-Centralia, said the instant lottery is "an abomination" and that he will seek to outlaw it legislatively "if I can get the votes."

"Our surveys just do not substantiate to any degree the accusations that those least able to afford it buy tickets," he said.

Batch said one survey taken for his office showed the average salary of lottery ticket buyers is $12,500 — about $300 higher than shown in earlier surveys taken for the office.

He said the instant lottery game also drains more money than the weekly games have from illegal gambling operations such as numbers.

But he added he can't prove that, saying wryly, "the syndicate has not yet published its Dow Jones averages" on its gambling take.

The lottery expects to generate $180 million in sales in fiscal 1977 which starts July 1, and Batch said it could top $200 million with two instant lottery games.

Rep. Roscoe Cunningham, R-Lawrenceville, withdrew an amendment to cut $1.5 million from the lottery budget after Batch told the committee the money is needed to keep interest in the games high.

But the committee persisted in cutting $1.7 million from the overall Revenue Department budget despite director Robert Allphin's claim that such action would "seriously hamper the ongoing administration" of the department, which is responsible for tax collection.

Rep. Thaddeus Lechowicz, D-Chicago, the committee chairman, said even with the cut, the department's budget would be $2 million higher than the budget for the current fiscal year.

In other action, the Senate Executive committee approved legislation to speed the flow of state money for planning and construction of civic centers in seven downstate communities.

The legislation sent to the Senate floor would make the cities of Springfield, Rockford, Peoria, Aurora, Decatur and Danville and Madison County eligible for a maximum $20 million in state money for civic centers.

The state would contribute a maximum of 75 per cent of the cost of the projects with the remainder raised locally.

The state money would come from sales of up to $75 million in bonds to be repaid over the next 15 to 20 years from money collected from a tax on horse race betting.

Receipts from the horse race betting taxes are currently being used to pay off bonds used to build the McCormick Place exposition center on Chicago's lakefront.

These bonds will be paid off in November.

Sen. Sam Vadalabene, D-Edwardsville, the sponsor of the legislation, said he thinks that "downstate should be treated like Chicago and McCormick Place."

The committee approved the bill without dissent. It would replace an earlier law struck down by the Illinois Supreme Court because of a technical flaw.

Groups vie for revenue sharing funds from Mt. Morris Board

MT. MORRIS — A revenue-sharing hearing was held at the village board meeting Tuesday night. Representatives for the school, library and band were present.

Rob Urish and Dave Turner, representing the school board said revenue-sharing money could be used for school expenses, such as $6,000 for gym rent, $1,000 for crossing guard on Ill. 64, $2,000 for a baseball backstop, $1,500 for water and sewer, plus aid to tile the area behind the bus garage.

Library representative Allen Yoder claimed that expenses for furnace, air conditioner, projector and screen, photocopier and work programs with schools would qualify for the money.

Dick Park of the community band sought help for the summer concert program which was $854 short this year.

Payment of the bills in the amount of $3,677.67 were approved. Balance on hand as of April 1 in the general fund $334,211.56.

Bruce Wellman appeared before the board and presented a building permit for a new building at 119 S. Wesley. It will replace an old one that is presently there.

Also the following permits were issued:

To Charles Buser to allow him to build closer to a curb line.

To grant a six month extension to Raymond Doyle to build an apartment building.

To Richard Mongan to erect a garage at 302 W. Brayton Road.

To grant the Moose Lodge an extension of their building permit.

A permit was tabled until the next meeting for Roy Wright who wanted to build a garage.

Karl Black representing the Chamber of Commerce requested free parking downtown for a May 1 May Day promotion. The request was granted.

A resolution concerning the grant agreement between the village and the EPA was read and adopted.

Glenn Irwin representing the American Consulting Service came before the board to explain a contract change in regard to the sewer project which is scheduled to start soon. The contract will be signed after EPA approval.

Also approved was the purchase and replacement of seven fire hydrants.

Lindgren, Callihan, Weaver and VanOsol of Rockford, were hired to audit the village books for this year.

A motion was made to pay Frank Personette time and a half for work at village hall building retroactive Jan. 1, 1967.

A report that 20 stumps have been removed at a cost of $11 per stump was read. Fifteen more trees are to be removed and village employees are to dispose of them. This will cost $1,368.

Bids will be advertised on 5,480 square feet of sidewalk construction to be finished July 1.

A pole building 248 x 30 feet and 10 feet high for salt storage for a cost of $1,490 by the Leaf River Lumber co, was approved.

The village mowing contract went to Marv Moring at $60.50 per mowing. Brad Doyle was the only other bidder $62.50. Contracts were also won by Moring for mowing of Dillehay Park for $50 and Zickuhr Park for $18 per mow.

Village board member heard advice from Dave Smith, Oregon attorney on the liquor code which is in the process.

Harold Alden was hired as a part-time maintenance employee.

Tax Time

For more than 80 million Americans April 15th has a special meaning. Today is the deadline for filing federal income tax returns. In 1913, when the income tax was made legal by constitutional amendment, about 425,000 Americans earned enough to be taxpayers. The 1913 tax was a 1 per cent levy on incomes over $3,000. A surtax of 1 to 6 per cent was collected on taxable incomes above $20,000. The constitutional amendment making income taxes legal was passed after the Supreme Court ruled such taxes unconstitutional in 1894.

DO YOU KNOW — Which constitutional amendment provides for the modern income tax?

NIU chief sees cutback without boost in funding

DeKALB— "If the state's funding for higher education does not increase in the next year or two, it seems clear that we will have to reduce our obligations and educational services," said Richard J. Nelson of Northern Illinois University.

The president of the 25,000-student university offered the grim warning to faculty, staff and students April 12 while outlining Northern's budget crunch.

"During the next year, we are going to have to take a very close look at what we are doing and make some decisions as to what we can do without," Nelson added.

Nelson said that over the past several years, NIU has been faced with a series of cuts in its base budget despite gains in enrollment.

Northern's present appropriation of $44,980,100 was $1.1 million less than expected. This has resulted in cancellation of this summer's intersession program, a freeze on most hiring, the closing of the campus during Christmas holidays to reduce the cost of utilities and other cuts.

For the next fiscal year beginning July 1, Northern is faced with additional cuts. NIU had requested $50,604,400 to maintain quality education services and cover costs of operating a new library, which is scheduled to open this fall, and to cover various price increases and inflationary gains.

The Illinois Board of Higher Education has already cut NIU's request to $49,784,000 and Gov. Dan Walker's budget calls for a further reduction to $47,329,300 for NIU, which is more than $3.2 million less than requested to maintain programs and tread the waters of inflation.

"The governor's budget provides for a five per cent increase ($2.3 million) in appropriated money, but most of this is designated for areas that sorely need to be covered. The $2.3 million for salary and utility increases will absorb 63 per cent of the total increase. The remainder is for operation and maintenance of new buildings and for price increases," Nelson said.

The governor's budget will also reduce money for new programs and for salary increases from five to 2.5 per cent.

Nelson said this is "the budget that we could have to live with through the coming summer and fall and perhaps the entire year."

He outlined the possible impact of the governor's budget on academic and other areas of the university.

'Summer and Smoke at Kishwaukee College

MALTA — Kishwaukee College's drama department will be presenting one of Tennessee Williams' most highly regarded works, "Summer and Smoke," April 29-May 2.

Curtain time will be 8 p.m., Thursday through Saturday and at 2 p.m., on Sunday in room A-130 on campus. Dr. Tyrone Turning of Rochelle is director of the play. He is chairman of the college's fine arts department.

The play is a simple love story of a somewhat puritanical Southern girl and an unpuritanical young doctor. Each is basically attracted to the other but because of their divergent attitudes toward life, each over the course of years is driven away from the other.

Not until the end does the doctor realize that the girl's high idealism is basically right and while she is still in love with him, it turns out that neither time nor circumstances will allow the two ultimately to come together.

Actors include Kathy Cacciatore of Byron; Dave Circo, Frank and Maxine Freed, Martin Sheldon, Bob Anthenat, Bill Wolfson and Ric McCue of DeKalb; Brian Olmstead of Esmond; Sherry Standing of Malta; Denise Cipolla and Ruth Winterland of Rochelle; John Bellinger of Sycamore; and Debbie Bronson of Waterman.

Miss Cacciatore and Circo play the lead roles, she as Alma Winemiller, a minister's daughter, and he the fun-loving Dr. John Buchanan Jr.

Circo said he's involved in dramatics because of an interest in law. He thinks theatre and speech will help him in that field.

"I've been involved in the theatre off and on for three or four years. I have no intentions of going professional," Circo said.

He is a graduate of St. Laurence High School, Chicago, and has performed in "Brigadoon," "Death of a Salesman," and "South Pacific."

Circo also said being involved in school is a reason he's in the play.

"It's wrong to go to school and not get involved. If you're interested in school, you should be interested in the school activities. Theatrical work is good. It takes a certain amount of training, discipline and memorization. This helps in the academic areas."

Circo also commented on the character he portrays in the play, "I think he's an excellent character. I've got a lot of his characteristics, some of the good and some of the bad. At first I thought he was a simple character, but he's not. He's got energy and needs channels to release it."

Miss Cacciatore views the character she portrays as complex and a paradox.

"Alma's a lot of fun, but she's a witch. I enjoy doing her, but she's so scary. She has feelings for John, but can't convey them. She's complicated, but at the same time, she's a shell of a person."

Miss Cacciatore, the first runner-up for the 1975 Miss Ogle title is a special education major who enjoys plays and getting in front of people and talking.

The Byron High School graduate has performed in "The Marriage Proposal" and "The Caucasian Chalk Circle." Tickets will be available at the door or in advance from the college's drama department. Call 825-2086 for further information.

Hundley produces key double Cubs rally to defeat Mets

By JOE MOOSHIL
AP Sports Writer
CHICAGO (AP)—The Chicago Cubs' M-Squad struck again Wednesday when Rick Monday, Bill Madlock and Jerry Morales contributed key hits to lead a come-from-behind 6-5 victory over the New York Mets and Tom Seaver who was forced to the sidelines with a sore calf.

The triumph was the fourth straight for the Cubs, who added a bit of the old to the victory as Randy Hundley rejoined the club and doubled to trigger a three-run, seventh-inning winning rally.

The Mets held 3-0 and 5-2 leads over the Cubs but couldn't hold on, possibly because the brilliant Seaver was unable to remain in the game.

Seaver suffered a calf injury in spring training and the ache flared up and forced him to leave the game in the sixth inning.

"I first felt it in the third inning," said Seaver. "I couldn't drive the ball and by the fifth inning I had nothing behind my pitches. It seems to linger on. I had rested it two days and it felt better. I don't know if I'll miss a turn. We'll have to wait a day or two."

John Milner singled in two runs in the first inning and drove in another in the top of the fifth on a sacrifice fly to give Seaver and the Mets a 3-0 lead.

Seaver yielded a lead-off double to Rick Monday in the first inning and didn't give up another hit until Steve Swisher singled in the fifth. Two outs later, Monday clobbered his first homer of the year.

Dave Kingman made up for these two runs with a two-run homer in the top of the sixth but Seaver couldn't hang on.

Madlock and Morales both singled to open the bottom of the sixth and Seaver left the game. The Cubs picked up a run in the inning when the Mets botched up a run-down play which Manager Joe Frazier said "We executed perfectly 100 times in spring training and screwed it up the first time we had it in the regular season."

Hundley, a late catching replacement, then made his first appearance at bat amid a tremendous ovation from the crowd of 9,307.

"That tore me up," said Hundley, who responded with a double and scored on a single by Jose Cardenal. Madlock tripled Cardenal home with the tying run and then scored the winner as Morales punched a single through a pulled-in infield.

"These guys are hotter than a firecracker," said Frazier. "Everytime they need a hit it seems to go through the infield and then on a hit-and-run, Madlock gets them a triple."

Cub Manager Jim Marshall was overjoyed because of Hundley's hit and the relief work of Mike Garman, who picked up a save by working the last two innings.

"Garman really smoked today," said Marshall. "His ball was exploding both ways. Imagine being down 5-2 to Tom Seaver and still winning the game."

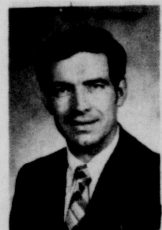

Garman ended the game by exploding a called third strike past the dangerous Milner. "I'm pleased the way I'm going," said Garman. "The pitch to Milner was a fast ball, inside."

The Cubs and Mets end their three-game series today with Bill Bonham going for the Cubs against New York's Jon Matlack.

RARE OCCURRENCE— Los Angeles Dodgers Manager Walt Alton looks up at a steady rain that caused a postponement of a game with the San Diego Padres in Los Angeles. It was the second time, since the Dodgers moved to Los Angeles in 1958, that a game was rained out in Los Angeles. (AP Wirephoto)

Bill Virdon is an admiral

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer
If Sparky Anderson has earned the nickname "Captain Hook," Houston Astros Manager Bill Virdon deserves to be an admiral.

Anderson earned his stripes last year for rarely letting a Cincinnati Reds pitcher finish what he started. But that was nothing compared to Virdon, whose juggling act would make Barnum & Bailey proud.

Virdon pencilled in 17 pitchers last week when the Astros lost their first three games to Cincinnati. The results changed but the strategy remained the same the past three days, when the Astros evened their record by sweeping the three-game series with the San Francisco Giants.

Virdon used three pitchers in each of those victories, including Wednesday night's 5-3 decision over the Giants.

Larry Dierker lasted six innings for the Astros, which is six more than his last outing when he was shelled by the Reds and left the game without retiring a batter.

He was backed by Roger Metzger's run-scoring double and Enos Cabell's RBI triple, key hits in the Astros' four-run second inning. He also had the support of two effective relief pitchers, Larry Hardy and Jose Sosa.

Phillies 8, Expos 2
Philadelphia's Jim Lonborg scattered six hits, struck out four and walked three to pick up his first victory since July 23, 1975.

"For me, it's the beginning of a new career," said Lonborg, Cy Young Award winner in 1967 with the Boston Red Sox, who suffered from shoulder problems last season.

Padres 3, Dodgers 1
Dave Winfield and Hector Torres slammed consecutive home runs in the second inning and left-hander Randy Jones scattered seven hits to send the winless Dodgers to their fourth straight defeat.

Jones, who became the only 20-game winner in Padres history last season, struck out five enroute to his second straight complete game victory.

Elsewhere in the American League, the Texas Rangers completed a three-game sweep of the Oakland A's 4-2, the Cleveland Indians came from four runs behind to edge the Boston Red Sox 6-5 and the California Angels posted their first 1976 triumph by shading the Kansas City Royals 7-6.

Rangers 4, A's 2
Gaylord Perry pitched Texas to its third straight triumph over the A's with a six-hitter, outdueling Vida Blue. By winning, the Rangers moved into first place in the AL West with a 5-1 record, 1 1/2 games ahead of the White Sox and two in front of the perennial champion A's.

Texas took a 2-1 lead in the fifth inning. Roy Howell singled, was sacrificed to second and scored when Jim Fregosi's hot grounder took a bad hop and caromed off third baseman Sal Bando's arm for a double. Toby Harrah's single sent Fregosi home. In the seventh, Len Randle walked, moved to second on a sacrifice, took third on a grounder and scored on a wild pitch.

Indians 6, Red Sox 5
Rick Manning doubled to trigger a six-run sixth inning against Ferguson Jenkins that erased a 4-0 Boston lead as the Red Sox pounded Jim Bibby. Manning scored on Duane Kuiper's single and one out later a walk and Boog Powell's single made it 4-2.

Rico Carty doubled a run home and, after an intentional walk, Jenkins balked the tying run across. Alan Ashby then delivered a two-run single.

Angels 7, Royals 6
Ed Herrmann homered twice and drove in four runs to lead the Angels to their first 1976 victory. With Kansas City leading 5-3 in the eighth inning, Dave Collins and Bruce Bochte walked and a single by Bill Melton brought Collins home. Then Herrmann unloaded his second home run of the night, a shot over the right field fence off reliever Marty Pattin.

Kansas City jumped to a 3-0 lead with a second-inning outburst against Frank Tanana on singles by Jim Wohlford, George Brett, John Mayberry, Hal McRae and Al Cowens plus an error by California right fielder Lee Stanton.

The rookie class

By HAL BUCK
AP Sports Writer
In the first week of the major league baseball season, the best reports on the 1976 rookie class belong to third baseman Hector Cruz of the St. Louis Cardinals and pitcher Steve Barr of the Texas Rangers.

The Cardinals were so convinced that Cruz could make the jump to the majors that they swapped Ken Reitz to San Francisco over the winter, opening up third base for the 23-year-old infielder who was the American Association's Player of the Year in 1975.

So far, the gamble has paid off. In his first four games, Cruz is batting .333 on five hits in his first 15 at bats including a double and a homer. He has driven in five runs and scored two.

Barr was another gamble, coming to the Rangers in the controversial trade that sent Ferguson Jenkins to Boston. But the curve-balling left-hander made an impressive Texas debut, limiting Oakland to four hits in his first start and beating the A's 3-1.

Cruz is a converted outfielder who is still learning the ropes at third base. But the Cardinals are willing to live with an occasional fielding adventure in order to keep his bat in the lineup.

Cruz, whose brother, Jose, plays the outfield for Houston, brought formidable credentials with him to the Cardinals. He batted .306 in 1975 with 29 home runs and 116 runs batted in and Tulsa. He took third base less than 100 times in his career.

Two other rookies have moved into regular jobs. Chet Lemon is playing center field for the Chicago White Sox and batting .200 on 2-for-10 and Butch Wynegar has been handling Minnesota's catching and batting .231 on 3-for-13.

Hawks are at home

CHICAGO (AP)— The Montreal Canadiens' two-game edge in their quarter-final series with the Chicago Black Hawks doesn't comfort Coach Scotty Bowman, who is looking forward to "two tough games."

"I'll admit we made them look bad in the first game," said Bowman. "But the Hawks played fearful hockey in the second."

Bowman's players take on the Hawks tonight in Game 3 of the best-of-seven Stanley Cup series, and the Canadiens coach is wary of the Chicago team's defense strategy.

"I think everybody is putting them down, but they can play good, sound defensive hockey. If they'd gotten ahead by two goals with that defensive style of theirs it might have been a different outcome," he said after his team repulsed a pesky Hawks effort 3-1 in Montreal Tuesday night.

"I expect them to play the same way on their ice in the two games in Chicago. And I don't blame them. If I was in their place I'd do the same," Bowman added.

Although Chicago mentor Billy Reay said he was encouraged by the Hawks performance Tuesday, he isn't talking about a come-back yet.

"We played our style in the second game," he said, "but we still have trouble scoring. I don't anticipate any changes Thursday."

Chicago led 1-0 after one period, but Montreal roared back on second-period goals by Yvan Cournoyer and Jacques Lemaire. Guy Lafleur completed Montreal scoring with a third-period goal.

The Canadiens opened the series Sunday with a 4-0 victory.

One surprise in the Hawks lineup Tuesday was defenseman Bill White, who strained ligaments in his left knee in the first game of the playoff series.

Philadelphia fans relish 'Big Mac' battle

By The Associated Press

Philadelphia fans can't help but be relishing tonight's play-off matchup of the National Basketball Association's two "Big Macs" — Bob McAdoo of the Buffalo Braves and George McGinnis of the hometown 76ers.

McAdoo, the Braves' agile center, became only the fourth player in league history to win the scoring title at least three consecutive years, finishing the season with a 31.1 average per game. He also was seventh in rebounding and sixth in blocked shots.

McGinnis, the 76ers' powerful forward, wound up his first NBA season — following a standout career in the American Basketball Association — as the league's sixth best scorer (23.0), sixth leading rebounder and second in steals.

The Buffalo-Philadelphia game, the first in their best-of-three qualifying series, is one of four NBA playoff contests scheduled tonight. In the other qualifying series, the Milwaukee Bucks, with a 1-0 lead, meet the Pistons at Detroit.

In best-of-seven quarter-final series, the Washington Bullets, with a 1-0 edge, entertain the Cleveland Cavaliers, and the Seattle SuperSonics, also with a 1-0 advantage, are at home against the Phoenix Suns.

Philadelphia Coach Gene Shue has made no secret of his strategy against Buffalo. He has indicated he virtually is willing to concede McAdoo his average number of points, explaining: "What we have to do is hold down the rest of the Braves."

The 76ers' tactics worked well enough during the regular season for them to beat the Braves in four of seven games, enabling them to gain the home court advantage in the playoffs.

Both teams have explosive offenses and porous defenses. Buffalo was the second highest scoring team during the season with a 107.3 average and Philadelphia was fourth at 106.5. Defensively,

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE G-658: Grace T., aged 19, is a college coed.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "I am puzzled by the attitude of my psychology prof."

"He ridicules your daily newspaper column and claims you are disgracing college psychology by making problems so easy that laymen can solve them."

"Indeed, he even delivered a 30-minute attack on the college textbook you and your doctor sons have written."

"For he says it is too simplistic, like your newspaper feature."

"But, Dr. Crane, what is wrong with making education simple and easy to comprehend?"

"Why, he uses long polysyllables that most of us students can't understand so we groan and stay up late at night trying to figure out what he means."

"Wouldn't it be great if newspaper reporters and advertising men could teach our college professors how to make things easy to understand?"

Bible Psychology

The most widely read book in the world even today (and certainly all through history for the past 3,000 years) is the Bible.

Its average word has only two syllables!

And Christ not only employed monosyllables a great deal, but also illustrated his ethical rules by simple, everyday cases, called parables.

Alas, many modern clergymen haven't yet learned this superb educational technique of talking the language of the customer, parishioner or student.

Journalism professors and newspaper editors should be asked each year to conduct a seminar for all the local teachers, just to show them how to use words most efficiently!

For people think faster in short words.

And are also attracted to short paragraphs.

Yet the higher up in the school system you go, the more the teachers try to throw their weight around by using five-syllable jawbreaker terms.

Is it because they are still imbued with juvenile eagerness to impress people by use of polysyllables?

When a psychology professor says a textbook is too simplistic, he is obviously not an Applied Psychologist.

He is a braintruster educator, for we have a vital distinction among teachers.

About 25 per cent of them have "Horse Sense," whereas the other 75 per cent still show the juvenile ego-hunger to impress people via long words.

"That awful Dr. Crane!"

Some of those 75 per cent explode on college campuses. "He belittles the dignity of scientific psychology by using two-syllable words!"

To which I reply: "You ivory tower mossbacks merely ob-
